

Susan West Friedman Fund for Civil and Human Rights

Throughout her life, Susan West Friedman promoted the causes of civil and human rights. As a young woman of Jewish heritage, in high school Susan's strong feeling against discrimination and racism compelled her to join and march with the leading civil rights organization, Congress on Racial Equality. In her 20's Susan wrote extensively about the issues of equality, repression and fairness, traveling throughout South America, studying the roots of poverty and looking for solutions.

Susan continued to contribute financially to these causes in her latter years, while promoting human rights by actively participating in the leadership of several peace and social justice organizations.

The Susan West Friedman Fund will continue her unfinished work by supporting youth and minorities who are engaged in exemplary projects in the community. The fund will be administered by a federally registered 501(c)(3) non-profit organization with grants being given to worthy individuals and causes on a yearly basis.

The Susan West Friedman Fund seeks to raise $100,000 to begin its efforts to promote civil and human rights. A website and newsletter will acknowledge the contributors and track the good deeds done by the recipients. All donations will be tax deductible.

"All that is necessary for the triumph of evil is that good people do nothing."

"Martin, my daughters and a few friends came up with this idea for the fund. I think it is a really sweet idea. There is so much to do, I wish I could more, but I've run out of energy. I hope you will help keep my dreams alive... and don't you give up. Thank you in advance, I love you all."
